- The giclée prints represent nowadays the highlight of the impression for the large format ink jet printers and of the printing today generally. Contrary in simple printings in the ink jet, owe reach or even exceed the museological standards of archivability and precision. The domain of the graphic arts and, more exactly, the art reproduction is merciless in this respect. To be made the giclée owe call on to materials with neutral PH, without agent of optical bleaching, and broad-spectrum, pigmented water ink. This is the way they reach an exceeding life expectancy on the 100 years, vibrating colors, and an accuracy of tints which will confer on these images the "archival" rank.
